I denne bog fremlægges etnografiske undersøgelser blandt Mlabri-folket, som var en lille stamme på 140 personer, der på undersøgelsestidspunktet levede isoleret i Nordthailands jungle. I forbindelse med otte ekspeditioner foretaget mellem 1970 og 1994 opholdt forfatteren og hans kone sig hos mlabri'erne og indsamlede informationer om deres materielle og religiøse liv. Ved at kombinere det indsamlede materiale med kilder fra faglitteraturen når forfatteren frem til, at mlabri'erne har så mange ligheder med junglefolk, som lever i de nordligste egne af Malaysia, at de antagelig udvandrede derfra for 2-3.000 år siden. Hårdt presset af det omgivende samfund har mlabri'erne indenfor de seneste år forladt junglen og lever nu mere eller mindre assimileret i det thailandske samfund. Endnu en ældgammel kultur er gået til grunde.
